National championship games football scores

Image Source/Getty Images/Getty Images The highest-scoring college football game was played on October 7, 1916 between Georgia Tech and Cumberland College, with Georgia Tech winning 222-0. This same football game is also on the record books as the harshest score in college football history. Although the Cumberland College football program was discontinued before the 1916 season, due to a scheduling mix up, Cumberland was added to the Georgia Tech schedule. Coach Joe Heisman reminded Cumberland College of a $3,000 loss fee if the game didn't take place. To avoid scorching fees, Cumberland College's student managers quickly gathered 13 students, mostly fraternity brothers, to face the Georgia Tech football team. The game was often regarded as a retaliation for the Georgia Tech baseball team's humiliating 22-0 loss to Cumberland the previous year. Both teams were coached by the Heisman, and he was annoyed with Cumberland's use of professional players to win baseball games. However, in the face of an unprepared opponent on the football field, the Georgia Tech team easily takes revenge it is looking for. We can earn commissions for purchases using our links. The 2020 College Football Playoff National Championship LSU vs. Clemson preview The LSU Tigers (13-0) are the top-ranked team in all college football, and the number one seed in this College Football Playoff. They are SEC champions, stacked with high-quality teams this season. LSU dominated Oklahoma in the semifinals when they won the Chick-Fil-A Peach Bowl 63-28. LSU Heisman quarterback Joe Burrow threw seven touchdown passes in that game, and rushed for another. LSU is the heavy favorite to win and claim the National Championship, with an LSU betting line of -12. Unless someone knows how to slow Burrow down, LSU will be hoping to lift the trophy CBS Sports HQ experts choose between LSU and Clemson in a National Championship game. The Clemson Tigers (13-0) are the defending college football national champions, and you have to beat the beat champs if you want to be champions. Clemson won the ACC title and entered the College Football Playoff as the third seed. Clemson proved themselves in the Fiesta Bowl, which was their first tough test of the season. Clemson beat the Ohio State Buckeyes 29-23, coming back from an early sixteen-point deficit. Quarterback Trevor Lawrence led the comeback with two touchdown passes and a rushing touchdown. Clemson won't back down when it faces an SEC team in the National Championship Game. They have faced Alabama in three title games over the past four years, and won those two games.
